The Chinese government is considered by many to be the most progressive in the region, and a large number of Chinese companies are raising their sights by offering the same type of pioneering services to their nationals. An Alipay employee at a company in Beijing recently posted a letter and made a bold claim: the company has built a "new type of hotel" in Hong Kong that is relatively affordable for the average tourist, that is near the subway station, and has a kind of "unparalleled experience." The letter was posted by an employee named Yi Hua who said she worked for Vtrip. Vtrip is owned by Alibaba's affiliated travel and logistics company The e-commerce giant. "Vtrip has finished six kinds of projects in various countries including the United States, Germany, Italy, and Hong Kong. The most outstanding is the new type of hotel in Hong Kong, which is designed according to the principle of 'comfort, quality, and affordability,'" the post, which has been shared more than 6,000 times, reads. It then listed the five features that make this project particularly noteworthy. Read another letter from Yi Hua at the source link. An employee at Vtrip told Sixth Tone that the letter did not actually come from Vtrip, but that an individual in the company shared the post with the employee. Although it was posted by an employee, Sixth Tone still spoke with the person who posted the letter and confirmed the authenticity of the post. An employee at an Alipay representative office in Hong Kong told Sixth Tone that they could not provide information about foreign-owned Alipay employees, such as whether they get to choose what they do, or if they may be transferred to other jobs. "It's not our policy to comment on individual cases," they added. The employee also told Sixth Tone that they can neither confirm nor deny whether Vtrip's profits have increased in recent years. Vtrip's letter said that its new hotel, which was apparently ready for operation, offers "a wide range of modern and high-end functions," such as high-speed internet connections, GPS navigation, a mobile device charging station, and a restaurant that serves "modern Chinese cuisine." A screenshot from the letter. "I told the manager there that I will not sign a contract with Vtrip because I do not trust their business and

Q: Loading Multiple ASX (ZX, Xbox) Files I'm looking to load multiple.ASX files to my game. I'm using OpenTK to handle OpenGL rendering. I have included the namespace and a line of code using fxFormatLib; at the top of my code. I know I have to declare a variable to load and call the file I want to load, but I can't seem to figure out how to do it. I have tried many things like int[] gameData = new int[1] { gameData[0] = LoadFile("MultiFile.asx"); and string s1 = LoadFile("MultiFile.asx"); int[] gameData = new int[1] { Integer.Parse(s1) }; and int[] gameData = LoadFile("MultiFile.asx").ToArray(); and int[] gameData = File.ReadAllLines("MultiFile.asx").ToArray(); and many many others. Nothing has worked for me. I'm not getting any errors, but nothing is loading either. Here is what I am calling to load the file public static int[] LoadFile(string path) { int[] gameData; while (true) { var handle = fxFormatLib.fsxFileOpen(path, 0, FileAccess.Read); if (handle!= IntPtr.Zero) { fxFormatLib.fxFormat lib = (fxFormatLib.fxFormat)Marshal.GetObject("OpenTK.System.XFormat"); // Create a vector of 8 items, each representing an XF flag UInt16[] flags = new UInt16[8]; while ((int)handle!= -1) { int data = fxFormatLib.fsxFileRead(handle, ref flags);
